12th VOC Conference
March 8, 2024
Radboud University Nijmegen

Call for Papers

Scope

The Dutch/Flemish Classification Society, VOC, aims at communicating scientific principles, methods, and applications of ordination and classification. The VOC is a member of the International Federation of Classification Societies (IFCS).

The VOC would like to invite you to attend its 12th conference on March 8, 2024 at Radboud University Nijmegen. Contributed papers can be submitted on topics such as classification, clustering, scaling, data analysis, machine learning, pattern recognition, statistical modelling, and applications of classification and data analysis.

Fee

Participation is free for VOC members and PhD students and costs €25 for non-members. The participation fee includes membership; PhD students can become a member for free.

Important Dates

January 22: deadline for abstract submissions
January 29: notification of acceptance of presentation
February 23: registration deadline non-presenting participants

Time

The meeting will start around 10am and end around 5pm
